ENTERTAINMENT AT ST LOUIS COLLEGE

Christmas Celebrated By Pupils With Music And Song

Bright and well-trained pupils of St. Louis College appeared on the stage this morning in the hall of the College and sang to guests and friends who had gathered there to witness the Christmas entertainment which was gotten up by the teachers of the College. The hall was fittingly decorated.

Promptly at 9:30 o'clock the College orchestra under the direction of Brother Francis opened the exercises. This was followed by the singing of a Christmas anthem by the College chorus. The singing was exceptionally sweet and musical and the audience applauded with enthusiasm.

One of the most striking numbers was "A Grain of Salt," a musical comedy in two scenes. The performers were at their best and the parents who were present were greatly pleased.

Brother Henry, the principal of the College, and his assistants were the recipients of congratulations from the parents, visitors, and the old students of the college. Among those present were Bishop Libert and the Fathers of the Catholic Mission.

Following was the program:

1. Overture, Popular Medley Rathbun Orchestra.

WAMEA WORK TO BE COMPLETED

Cost Will Be $30,000
With Appropriation
Of $12,000

A conference was held in Marston Campbell's office yesterday afternoon between several Kauai men and the Superintendent and it was then decided that the department would go ahead with the extension of the Wamea breakwater, notwithstanding the smallness of the appropriation. The last Legislature appropriated $12,000 for the Wamea breakwater work, while Campbell estimates that it will take fully $30,000 to complete the work.

Marston Campbell has collected a voluminous report on building laws from many of the large cities in the United States, and from this he will attempt to compile a new law that will work satisfactorily in Honolulu. No law has as yet been drafted, but Campbell is working on it at the present time.

PATIENT CAUGHT HOUSEBREAKING

Says He Wanted To Call And Struck Wrong House

Is Keahokii, a patient of the Queen's Hospital, one of the bold, bad burglars who have been terrorizing the city of late, or did he merely make a mistake when he tried to call on a lady friend last night and got into the wrong house? This question is at present being puzzled out by the detective department, and in the meantime Keahokii is behind the bars for investigation.

The complaining witness against Keahokii is Thomas Burch, who lives on Punchbowl street a little above King. Last night at about 9 o'clock, after the entire Burch family had retired for the night, Mrs. Burch was awakened by a noise, caused by some one attempting to raise one of the windows in the front of the house. Owing to a catch the window could only be raised about half an inch, and the intruder soon gave up the attempt. Mrs. Burch peered out of the window and was able to see a man in light clothing leaving the house.

The woman awakened her husband, who ran outside in time to see the stranger disappearing up the street. Burch gave the alarm and with some neighbors he started in pursuit. A passing hack was chartered and in this Burch continued the chase. At the corner of Hotel street Detective Mahoe was found and he also joined the pursuit. The quarry dived into the grounds of the Queen's Hospital, with his pursuers at his heels. He was caught in one of the hospital buildings, and placed under arrest.

The main evidence against Keahokii is based on his attempt to raise the window, and also on the fact that a small hatchet, which the Burch family says, is always kept at the back of the house, was found on the front step. Furthermore, the Burch house is located within a few feet of the Johnson boarding house, where a thief entered Mrs. Timmons' room a few nights ago.

Keahokii, on the other hand, has a fairly plausible explanation. He is recovering from an illness and is employed by the hospital as a waiter. In this capacity he made the acquaintance of a woman who does washing at the institution. Yesterday, it appears, he bought a gallon of wine, with which the two made merry during the day, and last night, so Keahokii says, he had a date to call on the lady, who lives close to the Burch place. Burch claims that he called at the wrong house, having never visited the lady before, but why he elected to go through the window instead of entering in a more conventional way, he has still to explain. His lady friends do not deny the honor of Keahokii's acquaintance, but she insists that she had not asked him to call.

Sheriff Lauka stated this morning that a serious charge would be brought against the defendant, but the exact nature thereof has not as yet been decided upon.

PICTURES OF ROYAL FAMILY TO SEATTLE

At the request of the Smithsonian Institute, Special Agent Lloyd Childs has collected an excellent aggregation of photographs of members of the old Hawaiian royalty. These photographs were made, some of them, from paintings by J. J. Williams, and are of such historical value that Mr. Williams refuses to sell them.

He has, however, presented a large number to Mr. Child to be sent to the Smithsonian Institute, and the latter institution will include them in its exhibit at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. Among the pictures, besides those of Queen Liliuokalani, King Kalakaua, and other famous members of the Hawaiian nobility, are included the photographs of ex-Governor George R. Carter, Judge Dole, and C. H. Bishop.

HARBOR DREDGING HAS BEEN COMPLETED

Final soundings are now being made by the authorities to determine whether or not the terms of the contract have been complied with in the dredging of Honolulu Harbor. The contractors have completed their work and are ready to turn it over to the government just as soon as it will accept it.

The United States engineer was informed yesterday that all was completed and that the work was ready for inspection. As soon as the necessary soundings have been made, the formality of acceptance will be gone through with, of course providing it is found that the contract has been fulfilled, and the final installment of the contract price will be paid.
